RTT Establish World Headquarters in UK

Following the recent completion of an external funding round, Real Time Tracking Limited are proud to announce their successful move into a new Headquarters facility, based in Henley-on-Thames, Oxfordshire, UK. The location is well placed for the nearby Oxford University high technology hub, and, is conveniently situated for access to both the London-centric commercial markets, and the M4 'Silicon Corridor'.

The self-contained 1500 square foot facility, will provide a home to both RTT's Research & Development staff, and, will also be the location for the organisations Sales & Marketing efforts. Accordingly, the building will contain a purpose built 'IT Lab' where the latest developments of the Company's World-leading image processing and analysis technologies will be put through their paces, prior to commercial release.

The newly established headquarters building, will also host a state of the art technology-demonstration & new media resource, where RTT will be able to showcase its capabilities to current clients and potential future commercial partners.
